We picked out the simple dog-based API above that you gives the ability to:

- See a list of breeds
- See a list of images of dog by breed

We would like you to use HTML, CSS and Javascript to read the API and display it in an organized way. We would like to see the ability to select a breed and then be able to view images of that breed when selected. Feel free to use any frameworks you would like to achieve the task. Keep in mind the following:

- We would like to see modern HTML5/CSS3 be used keeping in mind that this should be responsive on mobile.
- Page performance, especially with the loading of images. You don't need to load all images at the same time, you could use some sort of refreshing or pagination solution as well.
